In 2011, United Way of Metro Chicago developed a ten-year plan, LIVE UNITED 2020, for addressing critical community needs with bold goals to improve people’s lives in the areas of education, financial stability and health, while still providing basic needs support across our region. With the hard work of our partner agencies, community leaders, board members, staff and you—our donors and volunteers—we have surpassed those goals in just six years, four years before our 2020 timeline.

As partners, you should be immensely proud of this work. And while reaching these goals is a major milestone, there is still much work to do in our region. In July of 2017, United Way will be launching our next impact plan, Stronger Neighborhoods for a Stronger Chicago Region which leverages United Way of Metro Chicago’s resources, network of agencies, expertise and coordinating power to address the needs of individuals and families to build strong households and improve the quality of life and the economy for the entire region.

In building on the impact of the last six years, we decided to look at how whole neighborhoods function for the good of their residents. How do schools, parents, businesses, houses of worship and local government work together to address the continued cycle of instability that is prevalent in many of our neighborhoods? Too many families in our region have not acquired the education or job skills to be able to secure a living-wage job, or they are one financial emergency or health emergency away from their family being thrown into financial crisis.

Using a community-led model to drive sustained neighborhood change, United Way of Metro Chicago launched the Neighborhood Network Initiative to work with residents and leaders in a highly coordinated approach to address critical community-based challenges in income, education, health and safety with deeper investment and coordinated community strategies. STRONGER NEIGHBORHOODS FOR A STRONGER CHICAGO REGION

Strong households, family well being, neighborhood stability and regional strength are inextricably linked together. Having surpassed the goals of our plan and moving forward from our LIVE UNITED 2020 work, we are approaching the complex problems in our region by building on the assets of our city and suburban neighborhoods with a new impact plan—Stronger Neighborhoods for a Stronger Chicago Region. Comprehensive, strategic and unrelenting in our commitment, we're bringing together the resources that support neighborhood leaders, residents, and organizations to create thriving communities for all of us.

This plan officially launches in July 2017; learn more at uw-mc/our-impact/program-funding.
